Scope and Content Note: This collection consist of photos collected in relation to the Latch Program, an academic support program. Latch is a one to two semester support and learning community that serves a diverse population of about 150 students per semester who are looking for support as they transition into college and develop their reading, writing, mathematics, and study skills. For over 40 years, Latch's community approach to education has helped students establish successful independent learning strategies and set realistic academic and career goals. The photos are of unidentified person(s) at various graduations, honors convocation and Latch events. There are also images of unidentified person(s) in unknown settings. Efforts are being made to identify the people in these images. The date range of this collection is 1987-2004. This collection also has an oversized component, consisting of 11x17 sheet copies of assorted photos.

Access/Restriction Information: The collection is unrestricted. It is the responsibility of the user to adhere to any and all copyright law, obtain copyright permission if needed, use the material appropriately and confer with the archivist regarding the use of potentially sensitive materials.

Processing Information: Processed by Christine Guy in Summer of 2013. Materials were added to the collection by Robby St. John in 2015 and in January of 2019 by Rebecca Gagne.

Mission Statement

- The ARCHIVE takes its mission from the mission of the Institution, to support those who wish to learn:
- By serving the College Community including its administration, faculty, staff and students
- By determining what materials of the Institution and the College Community are essential to collect and maintain
- By enhancing the culture of the College through the collecting and preservation of the Institution’s essential materials and making those collections accessible to users regardless of location or format
- By providing information that promotes the mission of the Institution internally and to the extended Community
- By supporting teaching and learning and enhancing the curriculum as appropriate
- By assisting and supporting the research of the faculty, students, and other scholars through access to information
- By promoting further understanding through discovery and dissemination of knowledge
